

ABSTRACT

Shinta, Effect of Information Technology and Information Sharing Vertically Against Managerial Performance (under the guidance of Mrs. Silvia DewiyantiSE.,Msi.,Ak)

This study aims to test and prove empirically the influence of information technology and information sharing vertically on managerial performance in a manufacturing company located in the city of Palembang is expected to be useful for companies and further research. In this study an entire population is used as a manager working in a manufacturing company located in the city of Palembang. The sample used is a manager or head of department-level managers who lead the functional: such as marketing, operasioanal, finance, etc. in a manufacturing company located in the city of Palembang. And techniques used for sampling is purposive sampling technique. Data used for this study is the primary data. Of the 110 questionnaires distributed, 83 questionnaires kembali. Hasil this study indicate that (1) information technology has no effect on managerial performance (2) the vertical distribution of information affects managerial performance

Keywords: Information Technology, Division of Information Vertically, Managerial Performance