

ABSTRACT

This study aims to there are differences in actual prices series (P_o) and estimated price series ($\widehat{P_o}$) and determine whether stocks are considered overvalued, undervalued, or fairness. Share price valuation method used is the Gordon Model and price earning ratio (PER). The population of this study were companies listed on the Indonesia Stock Exchange. Samples determined by using purposive sampling method. The samples obtained were as much 17 companies.

Keywords: actual price series (P_o), estimated price series ($\widehat{P_o}$), gordon model, price earning ratio (PER), share price valuation.